Germans Pay Heavily For Drive on Leningrad

FOUNDED 1881 No. 16503 ·

MOSCOW, July 6 (Reuter).—Russian troops are firmly holding the sector, up to the western Dvina area, of the attempted German drive on Leningrad, where thousands of dead Germans and many damaged tanks and planes are left on the approaches to the river, according to this morning's communique from the Soviet Information Bureau.

The communique adds that a greater part of the attacking enemy troops found death at the bottom of the Dvina.

During the night of July 5, heavy fighting continued in the sectors of Puck and Novograd Volinsk and in the Bessarabian sector.

At Novograd Volinsk, Russian troops are stubbornly resisting the advance of considerable mechanised forces of the enemy.

In The South

In the Bessarabian sector, a large concentration of German and Rumanian infantry, cavalry and tanks tried to advance in the direction of Bieltzi, which is being checked by the stubborn resistance of the Russians.

The Russians launched a counterattack in the Boriso sector on the evening of July 5 and heavy fighting continues.

MOSCOW, July 6 (Reuter).— In the Borbruisk sector, the Germans repeatedly tried to attack, but less struggle is being waged beall attempts were beaten off with beavy German losses.

> JERUSALEM, July 6 (Reuter).—Australian infantry who crossed the River Damour ten miles south of Beirut attacked along the north bank to-day and captured the strategic village of El Boum.

> The Allies have launched a big push on Beirut, the Lebanese capital and Vichy's key port on the Mediterranean coast:

The patrois which were flung on Saturday across the River Damour ten miles south of Beirut were followed to-day by Australian infantry who attacked along the north bank and captured the village of El Boum, which represents a sharp advance in the drive up the coast,

British bombers hammered the Vichy troops who are strongly entrenched on the north bank of the river and made the initial crossing by the land forces possible. They niso bombed the barracks and fuel installations in Beirut.

Beit-Din, 11 miles southeast of Beirut, where rests the left flank of the Vichy army in this sector, was similarly attacked.

This new push follows a long stalemate during which the Vichy forces have been resisting stubbornly along the Damour River for more than two weeks.

From Damascus

While the Allled troops are closing in on Beirut from the south, another column is maintaining pressure on the city from Damascus. From Mazar, Vichy troops are shelling the advancing Allies and to-day, the intensity of the bombardment is reported to have increased slightly.

Dr. H. H. Kung Reviews War Years Finances

The soundness of China's finances is stressed by Dr H. H. Kung, Finance Minister, in a review of the past four years Issued yesterday in connection with the fourth anniversary of the outbreak of Sino-Japanese hostilities.

China's economic structure in protracted hostilities, he said, was more conducive to the conservative policy of military and financial resistance than that of Japan, and the chances of its ultimate victory depended mainly on playing for time and on the co-ordinated development of personal and national productive Dealing with the great part the people had played in the war financing. Dr Kung said that remittances from Overseas Chinese had increased from the pre-war figure of $300,000,000 to $600,000,000 since hostilitles began and had been a helpful factor in reducing China's adverse balance of international payments.

Regarding China's borrowing programme, Dr Kung said that the Government had authorised internal loan issues to a total of $4,750,000,000. During the same period loans issued in Japan amounted to 17,670 million yen. . At the end of 1940, Chinn's national indebtedness outstanding was roughly $9,250 million while that of Japan was 28,250 million yen, nearly three 'times China's burden.

Dr Kung expressed China's appreciation of the assistance extended to her in the form of credits by third Powers, stating that they had been helpful in stabilising China's war finances. Up to the end of 1940 China had paid out $1,039,000,000 for debt services; $320,000,000 for external obligations and $719,-000,000 for internal obligations.

Dealing with Customs revenue, Dr Kung said that revenues forcibly detained by the Japanese had accumulated to more than $750,000,000 by the end of 1940.

Dr Kung denied reports of any currency inflation which had arisen following the increase of note-issue, and stated that "the surprise of the last four year's management was not that Chinn's currency had been subjected to severe tests but that it has withstood so well the enormous strain imposed on it by hostilities. Little wonder that such a showing has inspired confidence both at home and abroad in China's financial outlook."

CHINA'S HEAD HIGH

MOST striking feature of the fifth anniversary of the Sino-Japanese hostilities, which falls to-day, is the contrast in the tone of the commemorative speeches and writings by the statesmen and . journalists of the respective countries. Four years ago, Japan's spokesmen were so puffed up with confidence that they referred to the China War contemptuously as an "incident" which had merely to be cleared up with characteristic Japanese thoroughness in the face of historical Chinese docility; the Chinese leaders spoke grave words, accepted hard and nasty facts, and called upon the nation to make one of the greatest defensive fights in the history of the world.

To China, the fight is not only still on, but it has begun to assume a new and encouraging form. Japan is becoming weaker while China grows in military and national strength. Greater aid is being given by her democratic friends who are now completely confident of her ability to fight to win. China can hold her head high on this fifth anniversary of undeclared, but none the less bitter and brutal war.

To-day approximately 3,000,000 Chinese troops face nearly 1,000,000 Japanese troops over an area one third, the size of the United States and are still fighting. This, war has killed more people, caused more human misery, greater shifts in population and greater economic dislocations than any time in China's history. Between one-fourth and one-third of the earth's population has been directly involved in this great buttle.

Despite the long series of reverses on the battle fields, China is probably better off militarily than four years ago. Even foreign military observers agree that China now has

AMONG SEVERAL proposed alterations to the Rules of the Hongkong Football Association which the F.A. A third proposal is one which, believe, is modelled on a similar rule in the F.A. con-stitution at Home. It deals with the playing strength of

No Effort Spared To Strengthen N.E.I.

By JOHN M. RALEIGH

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

BATAVIA, Java, July 2 (UP) .- Netherlands East Indies have made every effort to turn the Indies into a series of Island fortresses. More than 50 air bases have been built in jungle fastnesses in Borneo and the Celebes. These acrodromes can only be reached by air, and attack necessarily would have to be air-borne.

Additional constal batteries have been emplaced at important salient points all over the Dutch archipelago, and the creation of a new native militia should provide a sufficiency of defending troops.

Augmenting air training schemes is the military instruction among local flying clubs. A number of Tiger Moth training ships have been ordered and should arrive shortly.

Half Million Laid Up In Britain

LONDON.—A secondhand motorcar in good condition costs more in Britain to-day than the same car when new. But the used car in run-down condition is a liability. Spare parts are difficult or impossible to obtain. When a car begins to go to pieces, the owner. usually puts it in storage and resorts to other means of transport.

Several factors have forced up the price of used cars. Many people believe there will be such a shortage of automobiles in post-war Britain that old timers will command high prices. The Allies have launched a big push on Beirut, the Lebanese capital and Vichy's key port on the Mediterranean coast.

The patrols which were flung on Saturday across the River Damour ten miles south of Belrut were followed to-day by Australian infuntry who attacked along the north bank and captured the village of El Boum, which represents a sharp advance in the drive up the coast.

. British bombers hammered the Vichy troops who are strongly entrenched on the north bank of the river and made the initial crossing by the land forces possible. They also bombed the barracks and fuel installations in Beirut.

Beit-Din, 11 miles southeast of Beirut, where rests the left flank of the Vichy army in this sector, was similarly attacked. This new push follows a long stalemate during which the Vichy forces have been resisting stubbornly along the Damour River for more than two weeks.

While the Allfed troops are closing in on Beirut from the south, another column is maintaining pressure on the city from Damascus. From Mazar, Vichy troops are shelling the advancing Allies and to-day, the intensity of the bornbardment is reported to have increased slightly.

CHINA'S HEAD HIGH

MOST striking feature of the fifth anniversary of the Sino-Japanese hostilities, which falls to-day, is the contrast in the tone of the commemorative speeches and writings by the statesmen and journalists of the respective countries. Four years ago, Japan's spokesmen were so puffed up with confidence that they referred to the China War contemptuously as an "incident" which had merely to be cleared up with characteristic Japanese thoroughness in the face of historical Chinese docility; the Chinese leaders spoke grave words, accepted hard and nasty facts, and called upon the nation to make one of the greatest defensive fights in the history of the world.

China can hold her head high on this fifth anniversary of undeclared, but none the less-bitter and brutal war:

Between one-fourth and one-third of the earth's population has been directly involved in this great battle.

U.S. Experts To Speed Burma Rd

Three American transportation experts who are proceeding to Chungking at the suggestion of the United States Government, have arrived in the Colony.

They are Mr Daniel D. Arnstelu, owner of the New York City Terminal Cab Company, Mr Harold Davis, owner of the Consolidated Motor Trucks Company of West Hartford, Connecticut, and Mr Marco Hellman, banker and transportation expert.

The three were met on arrival here by Mr P. N. Chung, Chungking Government representative, and Measrs J. Wong and N. C. Rugh, of the South West Transportation Company.

Mr Arnstein, the spokesman for the party, when interviewed yester-day, said: "We want to get down to work as fast as we can. Our objects are to speed up traffle and move more tonnage. We-do not know what we are going to encounter yet, but the methods we will try to use will be the same methods which have proved effective in America. The party's main object is to assist in solving problems of transporting war materials and supplies on whatever changes they believe Eleven Centres Closed as A Sudden Death on Saturday Middlesex Corporals' Club necessary.

Mr Arnstein declined to reveal anything further, but when questioned about America's attitude to the war in the Far East, said that 90 per cent. of the Americans were definitely for China, while the other ten per cent, did not count.

A third proposal is one which, believe, is modelled on a similar rule in the F.A. constitution at Home. It deals with the playing strength of teams. These are:

Effort Spared To Strengthen N.E.I.

By JOHN M, RALEIGH

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

BATAVIA, Java, July 2 (UP).—Netherlands East Indies have made every effort to turn the Indies into a series of island fortresses. More than 50 air bases have been built in jungle fastnesses in Borneo and the Celebes. These aerodromes can only be reached by air, and attack necessarily would have to be air-borne. Additional coastal batteries have been emplaced at important salient points all over the Dutch archipelago, and the creation of a new native militla should provide a sufficiency of defending troops.

Augmenting air training schemes is the military instruction among local flying clubs. A number of Tiger Moth training ships have been ordered and should arrive shortly. Much of this year's 36,000,000

LONDON.—A secondhand motorcar in good condition costs more in Britain to-day than the same car when new. But the used car in run-down condition is a liability. Spare parts are difficult or impossible to obtain. When a car begins to go to pieces, the owner usually puts it in storage and resorts to other means of transport.

SPANISH BANK NOTES Axis Loses Order

MADRID, July 6 (Reuter).-Spain is to print more of her own bank notes instead of getting them done for her by the Axis. A decree issued by General

Franco to-day says that the Bank of Spain must give preference to the Fabrica Nacional de Moneda for orders of manufacture of bank notes. The Fabrica Nacional de Moneda was authorised in April to print Bank of Spain notes and to-day the decree says that the intention was "to assure maximum guarantees of every kind in the national manufacture of notes for the issuing institutions."

The bulk of the bank notes at present in circuintion in Spain were printed in Germany and Italy. In case of special need, the Board of the Bank may still order notes to be printed abroad.

CHINA'S HEAD HIGH

MOST striking feature of the fourth anniversary of the Sino-Japanese hostilities, which falls to-day, is the contrast in the tone of the commemorative speeches and writings by the statesmen and journalists the respective countries. Four years ago, Japan's spokesmen were so puffed up with confidence that they referred to the China War contemptuously as an "incident" which had merely to be cleared up with characteristic Japanese thoroughness in the face of historical Chinese docility; the Chinese leaders spoke grave words, accepted hard and nasty facts, and called upon-the-nation-to-make-one-ofthe greatest defensive fights in the history of the world. To-day, depression has settled | China's.

upon Japan regarding the China enterprise; Chungking's stubopenly admitted. Something, near future. has been obtained out of the venture to date, but Oh! so little men, money and materials. Neither has this adventure in China profited Japan politically. She has become completely estranged from her former friends, the United States and Britain, and has aligned herself with a European heirachy of Totalitarians with whom she has only one thing in commonambition to destroy her neighbours.

ever before—a tremendous thing with Japan. to be able to say after four years China, the fight is not only still on, but it has begun to assume a new and encouraging form. Japan'is becoming weaker while China grows in military and national strength. Greater aid is being given by her democratic friends who are now completely confident of her ability to fight to win. China can hold her less bitter and brutal war.

AFTER FOUR YEARS OF

To-day approximately 3,000,000 Chinese troops face nearly 1,000,000 Japanese troops over an area one third the size of the United States and are still fighting. This war has killed more people, caused more human misery, greater shifts in population and greater economic dislocations than any time in China's history, Between one-fourth and one-third of the earth's population has been directly involved in this great battle.

Despite the long series of reverses on the battle fields, China is probably better off militarily than four years ago. Even foreign military observers agree that China now has

From The Ball Park

One afternoon a hard-fought centest reached a final frame with two strikes on the batter and the bases full, but so dark that street lamps were beginning to twinkle around the ballpark. The pitcher and catcher met in consultation. "I'll tell you what you do," said and the Clubs concerned shall the hind-snatcher, "I don't think the ump can see the ball. I'll keep it. You wind up and go through all the "Steecerike thurecee!" yelled the umpire.

The batter turned around and gave him a witherng look. "Why, you blind chump," he snarled, "that ball was three feet outside the plate!"

Effort Spared Strengthen N.E.I.

By JOHN M. RALEIGH

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

BATAVIA, Java, July 2 (UP).—Netherlands East Indies have made every effort to turn the Indies into a series of island fortresses. More than 50 air bases have been built in jungle fastnesses in Borneo and the Célebes. These aerodromes can only be reached by air, and attack necessarily would have to be gir-borne. Additional constal batteries have been emplaced at important salient points all over the Dutch archipelago, and the creation of a new native militia should provide a stifliciency of defending troops.

Augmenting air training schemes is the military instruction among local flying clubs. A number of Tiger Moth training ships have been ordered and should arrive shortly.

Much of this year's 36,000,000 guilder appropriation of the "Volk-sulad," or People's Parliament, is going for defence purchases abroad.
